

Dear Friend,

Mark your calendar; Giving Tuesday is coming upn November 30th, and One Earth is officially participating this year!

On this global day of giving back, you'll have the chance to join people around the world to show your support for causes and nonprofit organizations close to your heart.

Together, we can solve the climate crisis. Recent science, spearheaded by One Earth, shows that it's possible to limit global average temperature rise to 1.5°C through three pillars of collective action; transitioning to 100% renewable energy, protecting and restoring 50% of the world's lands and seas, and scaling regenerative agriculture.

There's a global network of change-makers driving these critical solutions, but they need support today. Currently, environmental and climate efforts receive less than 2% of global philanthropy, and just a fraction of that goes to community-led efforts where the action really counts.

Support One Earth, and your donation will go directly to on-the-ground climate solutions led by incredible frontline leaders and organizations around the world.

This special day of giving is almost here, but you can also donate now to lock in your support:

Thank you for your commitment to solving the climate crisis and creating a just, vibrant future where people and nature thrive as one.

With gratitude,
